

EMPLOYMENT APPEALS BOARD DECISION
2018-EAB-1098

Affirmed
No Disqualification

PROCEDURAL HISTORY: On October 3, 2018, the Oregon Employment Department (the Department) served notice of an administrative decision concluding the employer discharged claimant, but not for misconduct (decision # 120440). The employer filed a timely request for hearing. On November 7, 2018, ALJ Wyatt conducted a hearing, and on November 14, 2018, issued Order No. 18-UI-119640, affirming the Department's decision. On November 19, 2018, the employer filed an application for review with the Employment Appeals Board (EAB).

EVIDENTIARY MATTER: At hearing, the employer and claimant offered documents that the ALJ referred to as Exhibits 1 and 2, respectively. Audio Record at 4:28 to 8:42. The ALJ admitted the documents into the record as Exhibit 1 and 2 without objection. However, the ALJ failed to mark the exhibits in the hearing record. Because the documents were readily identifiable in the record, EAB marked the employer's documents as "Exhibit 1" and claimant's documents as "Exhibit 2." EAB considered the entire hearing record in reaching this decision.

EAB also considered the employer's written argument in reaching this decision. The employer argued that claimant's conduct in sending unprofessional text messages to a customer was wantonly negligent because he violated the employer's standards of behavior. See Employer's Written Argument. The record shows that some of claimant's text messages were personal rather than professional and contained "advances" toward the customer. Exhibits 1, 2. However, the record does not show that claimant knew or should have known from the employer's policies or as a matter of common sense, that the employer expected him to refrain from such communications with customers where, as here, the text messages were not overtly offensive and the customer did not communicate to claimant that the messages were unwanted. Exhibits 1, 2. The record therefore fails to show that claimant consciously engaged in conduct he knew or should have known violated the employer's expectations as he understood them, or that he was indifferent to the consequences of his actions. Absent such a showing, the employer failed to establish that claimant violated its expectations willfully or with wanton negligence. The employer also argued that claimant's text messages prompted a claim of sexual harassment from the customer and that the employer "would potentially [have] suffered further civil consequences” had it not discharged claimant. See Employer’s Written Argument. While those factors may have been relevant to the employer’s decision to discharge claimant, they are not relevant in this case to determine the nature of claimant’s mental state when he sent the text messages.

EAB considered the entire hearing record and the employer’s written argument in reaching this decision. On de novo review and pursuant to ORS 657.275(2), the order under review is adopted.

DECISION: Order No. 18-UI-119640 is affirmed.
