

EMPLOYMENT APPEALS BOARD DECISION
2018-EAB-1099

Affirmed
Disqualification

PROCEDURAL HISTORY: On October 15, 2018, the Oregon Employment Department (the Department) served notice of an administrative decision concluding claimant voluntarily left work without good cause (decision # 134924). Claimant filed a timely request for hearing. On November 13, 2018, ALJ Wyatt conducted a hearing, and on November 21, 2018, issued Order No. 18-UI-120146, affirming the Department's decision. On November 27, 2018, claimant filed an application for review with the Employment Appeals Board (EAB).

Claimant submitted written argument to EAB that contained information that was not part of the hearing record, and failed to show that factors or circumstances beyond claimant's reasonable control prevented claimant from offering the information during the hearing. Under ORS 657.275(2) and OAR 471-041-0090 (October 29, 2006), we considered only information received into evidence at the hearing when reaching this decision, and claimant's argument only to the extent it was based on the record.

FINDINGS OF FACT: (1) Creative Financial Staffing, a temporary staffing agency, employed claimant as a payroll assistant for one of its clients from July 24, 2018 until claimant voluntarily left work on July 25, 2018.

(2) Claimant's assignment with the employer's client was a full-time position, for an indefinite period, in Beaverton, Oregon. Claimant lived in Crabtree, Oregon, and often stayed with a friend in Molalla, Oregon. She expected to commute between Crabtree or Molalla and Beaverton for work. The assignment paid $30 per hour.

(3) The client was willing to consider changing the time of claimant's shift so that she might avoid commuting during peak traffic.

(4) On July 24, 2018, claimant commuted between Molalla and Beaverton to work for the client. The morning commute took one hour and fifteen minutes, and the commute home took one hour and 45 minutes. Claimant anticipated that it would take an additional 30 minutes when she commuted from Crabtree than it did to commute from Molalla.

(5) On July 25, 2018, claimant voluntarily left work because of how long it took to commute to and from the work assignment in Beaverton.

CONCLUSIONS AND REASONS: We agree with the ALJ and conclude claimant voluntarily left work without good cause.

A claimant who leaves work voluntarily is disqualified from the receipt of benefits unless she proves, by a preponderance of the evidence, that she had good cause for leaving work when she did. ORS 657.176(2)(c); Young v. Employment Department, 170 Or App 752, 13 P3d 1027 (2000). “Good cause” is defined, in relevant part, as a reason of such gravity that a reasonable and prudent person of normal sensitivity, exercising ordinary common sense, would have no reasonable alternative but to leave work. OAR 471-030-0038(4) (August 3, 2011). The standard is objective. McDowell v. Employment Department, 348 Or 605, 612, 236 P3d 722 (2010). A claimant who quits work must show that no reasonable and prudent person would have continued to work for the employer for an additional period of time.

Claimant left work when she did because she had a long commute to and from her work assignment. It is undisputed that claimant’s commute took more than an hour each way, and could take more than two hours each way from her home in Crabtree, in part due to travelling during high traffic hours. However, it does not appear on this record that claimant’s commute, even a relatively long one, amounted to a situation of such gravity that a similarly situated reasonable and prudent person would conclude there was no reasonable alternative but to quit work. The record does not show that at the time she quit work, claimant had experienced adverse consequences due to the commute, and we presume the cost of the commute did not exceed the $30 per hour in remuneration she received. Nor did claimant show that her commute otherwise created a grave circumstance for her such as endangering her health. Moreover, the client was willing to consider schedule modifications, and claimant had the reasonable alternative of discussing and trying those options before she quit.

For the foregoing reasons, we conclude that claimant failed to establish she quit work with good cause. Claimant therefore is disqualified from receiving unemployment insurance benefits until she has earned at least four times her weekly benefit amount from work in subject employment.

DECISION: Order No. 18-UI-120146 is affirmed.
