

EMPLOYMENT APPEALS BOARD DECISION
2019-EAB-0034

Affirmed
No Disqualification

PROCEDURAL HISTORY: On November 9, 2018, the Oregon Employment Department (the Department) served notice of an administrative decision concluding claimant quit work without good cause (decision # 91949). Claimant filed a timely request for hearing. On December 18, 2018, ALJ Janzen conducted a hearing, and on December 19, 2018 issued Order No. 18-UI-121504, concluding claimant quit work with good cause. On January 7, 2019, the employer filed an application for review with the Employment Appeals Board (EAB).

FINDINGS OF FACT: (1) Coca Cola High County employed claimant from May 7, 2018 to October 4, 2018 as a sales center manager.

(2) Claimant moved from Bend, Oregon, to Jackson Hole, Wyoming, to work for the employer. Claimant's two minor children remained in Bend, Oregon, with his former wife. Pursuant a court ordered co-parenting plan, claimant had parenting time with his children at least three to four days per month.

(3) The employer was understaffed and claimant worked 80 hours per week, seven days a week. When claimant requested time off to see his children, his manager repeatedly told him that he needed to find someone to cover his routes and appointments. Claimant was unable to find anyone to cover for him. As a result, claimant had parenting time on three occasions between May 7 and October 4. Nor could he have the children with him in Wyoming, because they would be alone between 12-15 hours per day.

(4) During the time claimant worked for the employer, his 12-year-old daughter began experiencing behavioral and health issues. Claimant's daughter started to use drugs, which resulted in her hospitalization once in August and twice in September 2018. Claimant's former wife was struggling to care for their daughter on her own. Claimant felt that he had to move back to Bend, Oregon, to care for his family.

(5) Claimant had personal time off available at when he quit working for the employer. However, taking time off between May and early September 2018 was not a viable option because the employer was understaffed. The understaffing issues continued throughout claimant's employment and claimant believed that there would be no improvements.

(6) The employer did not have any job opportunities in Bend, Oregon. On October 4, 2018, claimant quit working for the employer to move back to Bend to help care of his family.

A claimant who leaves work voluntarily is disqualified from the receipt of benefits unless he proves, by a preponderance of the evidence, that he had good cause for leaving work when he did. ORS 657.176(2)(c); Young v. Employment Department, 170 Or App 752, 13 P3d 1027 (2000). "Good cause" is defined, in relevant part, as a reason of such gravity that a reasonable and prudent person of normal sensitivity, exercising ordinary common sense, would have no reasonable alternative but to leave work. OAR 471-030-0038(4) (January 11, 2018). Leaving work with good cause includes but is not limited to leaving work due to compelling family reasons. OAR 471-030-0038(5)(g). "Compelling family reasons" includes leaving work to care for an ill or disabled member of an individual's immediate family and the employer does not accommodate the individual's request for time off. OAR 471-030-0038(1)(e)(B). "Immediate family" includes "spouses, domestic partners, parents, and minor children under the age of 18, including a foster child, stepchild or adopted child." OAR 471-030-0038(1)(f).

Here, claimant voluntarily quit working for the employer in Jackson, Wyoming, to seek employment in Bend, Oregon, to be closer to his family. Claimant felt that he needed to provide care for his daughter but was unable to do so due to the distance between Jackson and Bend, and his inability to take time off work because of the employers understaffing issues. The employer did not have any work opportunities in Bend. Claimant faced a grave situation. A reasonable and prudent person in claimant's situation would have no reasonable alternative but to leave work to seek employment in Bend. Furthermore, claimant left work for "compelling family reasons" because his 12-year-old daughter, an "immediate family" member, was experiencing health issues. The record shows that claimant's daughter necessitated care by him, and the employer would not accommodate his repeated requests for time off.

For the reasons stated, claimant showed that he had good cause for leaving work when he did. He is not disqualified from receiving benefits based on his work separation from the employer.
