

EMPLOYMENT APPEALS BOARD DECISION
2019-EAB-0790

Affirmed
No Disqualification

PROCEDURAL HISTORY: On June 25, 2019, the Oregon Employment Department (the Department) served notice of an administrative decision concluding the employer discharged claimant but not for misconduct (decision # 85108). The employer filed a timely request for hearing. On July 30, 2019, ALJ Murray-Roberts conducted a hearing, and on July 31, 2019 issued Order No. 19-UI-134246, affirming the Department's decision. On August 20, 2019, the employer filed an application for review with the Employment Appeals Board (EAB).

EVIDENTIARY MATTER. The employer offered a packet of documents that was not admitted into evidence at the hearing, although the documents were sent to the parties with the notice of hearing. Because both parties received the documents before the hearing as did the ALJ, EAB has considered them as additional evidence when reaching this decision under OAR 471-041-0090(1) (May 13, 2019). The additional evidence has been marked as EAB Exhibit 1, and a copy provided to the parties with this decision. Any party that objects to our admitting EAB Exhibit 1 must submit such objection to this office in writing, setting forth the basis of the objection in writing, within ten days of our mailing this decision. OAR 471-041-0090(2). Unless such objection is received and sustained, the exhibit(s) will remain in the record.

EAB considered the employer's written argument when reaching this decision.

FINDINGS OF FACT: (1) Goodwill Industries of the Columbia Willamette employed claimant as a cashier in one of its stores from September 17, 2018 until May 28, 2019.

(2) The employer expected that claimant would not give discounts or lower prices for customers without authorization from a supervisor, manager, or assistant manager. Notwithstanding the stated expectation, claimant and other cashiers would sometimes give discounts to customers who told them a supervisor or manager had approved a particular discount. Claimant and other cashiers often would not seek to confirm independently with a supervisor or manager that the discount was actually authorized because supervisors and managers were often busy or it was not feasible to delay processing the purchases of other waiting customers while seeking such confirmation. The employer never warned claimant about giving discounts without having direct, express authorization from a supervisor or a manager for the particular discount.

(3) In approximately March or April 2019, a customer approached claimant to purchase a baby blanket. The customer asked claimant to discount the purchase and stated that a manager had in the past given her discounts on such blankets because she purchased them for a local children's hospital. Claimant gave the customer a discount and did not seek authorization from a supervisor or manager.

(4) Around May 21, 2019, the employer learned of the discount claimant had given the customer in March or April 2019. Shortly after, the employer suspended claimant from employment.

(5) On May 28, 2019, the employer discharged claimant for giving a discount to the customer without direct and express authorization from a supervisor or manager.

CONCLUSIONS AND REASONS: The employer discharged claimant but not for misconduct.

ORS 657.176(2)(a) requires a disqualification from unemployment insurance benefits if the employer discharged claimant for misconduct connected with work. "As used in ORS 657.176(2)(a) . . . a willful or wantonly negligent violation of the standards of behavior which an employer has the right to expect of an employee is misconduct. An act or series of actions that amount to a willful or wantonly negligent disregard of an employer's interest is misconduct." OAR 471-030-0038(3)(a) (December 23, 2018). "[W]antonly negligent" means indifference to the consequences of an act or series of actions, or a failure to act or a series of failures to act, where the individual acting or failing to act is conscious of his or her conduct and knew or should have known that his or her conduct would probably result in a violation of the standards of behavior which an employer has the right to expect of an employee." OAR 471-030-0038(1)(c). Good faith errors are not misconduct. OAR 471-030-0038(3)(b). In a discharge case, the employer has the burden to establish misconduct by a preponderance of evidence. Babcock v. Employment Division, 25 Or App 661, 550 P2d 1233 (1976)

The employer did rule out, more likely than not, the accuracy of claimant's testimony that it was the practice of cashiers to give discounts when a customer told them a manager or supervisor had authorized the discount, often without confirming that the manager or supervisor had actually given authorization. Given this practice, claimant was not indifferent to the consequences of her behavior when she gave a discount to a customer based on the customer's representations that a manager had in the past given her discounts and that the discounted purchase was for a charitable cause. In light of this practice and the employer's failure to advise claimant that it did not approve of the practice, claimant likely also was not consciously aware that giving a discount to the customer probably violated the employer's standards. While claimant may have been negligent in not confirming that a manager or supervisor had authorized the customer's discount, claimant's behavior was not wantonly negligent.

The employer discharged claimant, but not for misconduct. Claimant is not disqualified from receiving unemployment insurance benefits.
