

EMPLOYMENT APPEALS BOARD DECISION
2019-EAB-0824

Affirmed
Disqualification

PROCEDURAL HISTORY: On June 26, 2019, the Oregon Employment Department (the Department) served notice of an administrative decision concluding that claimant voluntarily left work without good cause (decision # 81540). Claimant filed a timely request for hearing. On August 1, 2019 ALJ Frank conducted a hearing at which the employer did not appear, and on August 9, 2019 issued Order No 19-UI-134768, affirming the Department's decision. On August 26, 2019, claimant filed an application for review with the Employment Appeals Board (EAB).

Claimant's written argument contained information that was not part of the hearing record, and did not show that factors or circumstances beyond claimant's reasonable control prevented them from offering the information during the hearing as required by OAR 471-041-0090 (May 13, 2019). EAB considered only information received into evidence at the hearing when reaching this decision. See ORS 657.275(2).

FINDINGS OF FACT: (1) Intercare Therapy Inc. employed claimant as a behavior analysis interventionist from May 6, 2019 until June 6, 2019. Behavior analysis interventionists provided services for the treatment of autism spectrum disorder.

(2) At hire, claimant was not registered as a behavior analysis interventionist with the Behavior Analysis Regulatory Board.

(3) The employer trained claimant for the first two weeks after she was hired, through Friday, May 17, 2019. After claimant completed training, the employer assigned her to work two hours providing interventionist services to autistic clients on Tuesdays and two hours on Thursdays. During these sessions, a licensed behavior analyst was not present directly supervising claimant's activities. Claimant soon became concerned that she was not providing adequate therapy to the autistic clients. Claimant thought it was unlawful for her to provide therapeutic services to autistic clients if a licensed behavioral analyst was not present and directly supervising her.

(4) Around May 30, 2019, claimant tried to speak with her direct supervisor about her concerns, but the direct supervisor was out of the office. Claimant arranged to speak with the clinical supervisor about those concerns on June 3, 2019. As of that time, claimant was aware that the employer was not able to directly supervise claimant when she was providing therapy to autistic clients because the employer was understaffed by two supervisors.

(5) On June 3, 2019, the clinical supervisor told claimant that her direct supervisor would return to work on Tuesday, June 11, 2019 and would provide supervision to her at that time.

(6) On June 5, 2019, claimant notified the employer that she was leaving work effective June 6, 2019. Claimant quit work because she was uncertain if the supervision that the clinical supervisor had promised from her direct supervisor would provide would continue after June 11 or if it would be adequate.

CONCLUSIONS AND REASONS: Claimant voluntarily left work without good cause.

A claimant who leaves work voluntarily is disqualified from the receipt of benefits unless they prove, by a preponderance of the evidence, that they had good cause for leaving work when they did. ORS 657.176(2)(c); Young v. Employment Department, 170 Or App 752, 13 P3d 1027 (2000). “Good cause . . . is such that a reasonable and prudent person of normal sensitivity, exercising ordinary common sense, would leave work.” OAR 471-030-0038(4) (December 23, 2018). The standard is objective. McDowell v. Employment Department, 348 Or 605, 612, 236 P3d 722 (2010). A claimant who quits work must show that no reasonable and prudent person would have continued to work for their employer for an additional period of time.

ORS 676.820 provides that registered behavior analysis interventionists are permitted to practice applied behavior analysis, which suggests that a non-registered person may provide behavior analysis services only under the supervision of a licensed behavior analyst. Assuming that claimant was correct that she should not have been providing interventionist services without direct supervision, the clinical supervisor responded promptly to claimant’s request for supervision and promised it within a week. Although claimant quit because she thought the promised supervision might not actually be forthcoming, might be inadequate, or might not continue after June 11, she did not have enough information to draw those conclusions as of the time she quit. In lieu of quitting when she did, claimant had the reasonable alternative of clarifying with the employer the nature, extent, and duration of the supervision that the employer planned to make available to her, and determine if the supervision would be adequate to meet her concerns.

Because claimant did not pursue a reasonable alternative to leaving work, claimant did not have good cause to leave work when she did. Claimant is disqualified from receiving unemployment insurance benefits.

DECISION: Order No. 19-UI-134768 is affirmed.
