

EMPLOYMENT APPEALS BOARD DECISION
2019-EAB-1031

Reversed
No Disqualification

PROCEDURAL HISTORY: On September 3, 2019, the Oregon Employment Department (the Department) served notice of an administrative decision concluding claimant quit work without good cause (decision # 131910). Claimant filed a timely request for hearing. On October 3, 2019, ALJ Seideman conducted a hearing, and on October 11, 2019 issued Order No. 19-UI-137969, affirming the Department's decision. On October 29, 2019, claimant filed an application for review with the Employment Appeals Board (EAB).

Claimant did not declare that she provided a copy of her argument to the opposing party or parties as required by OAR 471-041-0080(2)(a) (May 13, 2019). The argument also contained information that was not part of the hearing record, and did not show that factors or circumstances beyond claimant's reasonable control prevented her from offering the information during the hearing as required by OAR 471-041-0090 (May 13, 2019). EAB considered only information received into evidence at the hearing when reaching this decision. See ORS 657.275(2).

FINDINGS OF FACT: (1) Perfect Look Salon employed claimant part-time from July 3, 2019 until July 10, 2019 at its salon in Dallas, OR.

(2) On June 24, 2019 claimant's minor daughter gave birth to a four-month premature baby that weighed one-pound five ounces. The baby was born in Salem, but was transferred to the intensive care unit at OHSU in Portland. Claimant's grandchild was in the intensive care unit (ICU) during claimant's time with employer. Claimant's presence at OHSU was required at times since her daughter was still a minor and her grandchild was in extremely poor health due to his premature birth.

(3) Claimant told the salon manager about her new grandchild being at OHSU. Due to her grandchild's health issues, claimant was not able to work her scheduled shifts. However, she needed money, so she asked the salon manger what was the best way to handle her situation and still be eligible for rehire. The salon manager suggested that claimant voluntarily terminate her employment.

(4) On July 18, 2019 claimant voluntarily quit her job with employer.

A claimant who leaves work voluntarily is disqualified from the receipt of benefits unless they prove, by a preponderance of the evidence, that they had good cause for leaving work when they did. ORS 657.176(2)(c); Young v. Employment Department, 170 Or App 752, 13 P3d 1027 (2000). “Good cause . . . is such that a reasonable and prudent person of normal sensitivity, exercising ordinary common sense, would leave work.” OAR 471-030-0038(4) (December 23, 2018). “[T]he reason must be of such gravity that the individual has no reasonable alternative but to leave work.” OAR 471-030-0038(4). The standard is objective. McDowell v. Employment Department, 348 Or 605, 612, 236 P3d 722 (2010). A claimant who quits work must show that no reasonable and prudent person would have continued to work for their employer for an additional period of time.

Order No. 19-UI-137969 affirmed decision #131910 without fully analyzing the record as it relates to what a reasonable prudent person would do in claimant’s situation. Claimant knew that her need to immediately respond to emergency situations involving her grandson would cause conflicts with her work schedule. Therefore, she asked the salon manager for advice on how to handle her dilemma. The salon manager’s only suggestion was that claimant voluntarily terminate, so that claimant could get her paycheck sooner and still be eligible for rehire.

The record suggests claimant’s situation was grave. It is highly doubtful that a reasonable and prudent person whose minor daughter and newborn premature grandchild were experiencing a critical health emergency would prioritize their job over the physical and mental health of their daughter and grandchild. The employer, through its witnesses, provided evidence that suggested claimant’s situation was not as grave as claimant purported. In spite of the employer’s testimony, the employer never disproved the serious condition of claimant’s grandchild, or that claimant’s grandchild’s health was as poor as claimant claimed. Nor did the employer suggest reasonable alternatives to quitting work; the lack of reasonable alternatives to quitting is supported by the fact that when claimant asked her salon manager for advice, the only advice the salon manager gave was that claimant quit work. Given claimant’s grandchild’s severe health situation and the established fact that claimant consulted with her employer about her work options, claimant has proved by the preponderance of the evidence that the gravity of her situation left her no reasonable alternative but to leave work.

For those reasons, the record shows that claimant voluntarily left work with good cause. Claimant is not disqualified from receiving benefits based on this work separation.
