

EMPLOYMENT APPEALS BOARD DECISION
2021-EAB-0025

Affirmed
Disqualification

PROCEDURAL HISTORY: On October 21, 2020, the Oregon Employment Department (the Department) served notice of an administrative decision concluding claimant quit working for the employer without good cause and was disqualified from receiving unemployment insurance benefits effective March 22, 2020 (decision # 102657). Claimant filed a timely request for hearing. On December 14, 2020, ALJ C. Smith conducted a hearing, and on December 16, 2020 issued Order No. 20-UI-157745, affirming the Department's decision. On January 5, 2021, claimant filed an application for review with the Employment Appeals Board (EAB).

FINDINGS OF FACT: (1) Albertsons employed claimant as a freight stocker from July 2019 until March 23, 2020.

(2) Claimant worked at an Albertson's store in Central Point, Oregon and lived in Grants Pass, Oregon. He had a girlfriend who lived in Huntington Beach, California and with whom he had been in a relationship for approximately two years. In February 2020, claimant and his girlfriend decided to live together in Huntington Beach. Claimant sought a transfer to the Huntington Beach area, but the employer denied his transfer request.

(3) During the first week of March 2020, claimant gave the employer notice that he would be quitting his job on or about March 23, 2020.

(4) On March 23, 2020, claimant quit to move to Huntington Beach and live with his girlfriend.

(5) Claimant's girlfriend was not his domestic partner, and claimant did not quit work to accompany his girlfriend due to a change in the location of her employment.

CONCLUSIONS AND REASONS: Claimant voluntarily quit work without good cause.

A claimant who leaves work voluntarily is disqualified from the receipt of benefits unless they prove, by a preponderance of the evidence, that they had good cause for leaving work when they did. ORS

657.176(2)(c); Young v. Employment Department, 170 Or App 752, 13 P3d 1027 (2000). “Good cause . . . is such that a reasonable and prudent person of normal sensitivity, exercising ordinary common sense, would leave work.” OAR 471-030-0038(4) (September 22, 2020). “[T]he reason must be of such gravity that the individual has no reasonable alternative but to leave work.” OAR 471-030-0038(4). The standard is objective. McDowell v. Employment Department, 348 Or 605, 612, 236 P3d 722 (2010). A claimant who quits work must show that no reasonable and prudent person would have continued to work for their employer for an additional period of time. Under OAR 471-030-0038(5)(g), leaving work with good cause includes, but is not limited to, leaving work due to compelling family reasons. “Compelling family reasons” is defined under OAR 471-030-0038(1)(e) to include:

(C) The need to accompany the individual’s spouse or domestic partner;

- (i) To a place from which it is impractical for such individual to commute; and
- (ii) Due to a change in location of the spouse’s or domestic partner’s employment.

Here, because claimant’s girlfriend was not his domestic partner at the time he quit work and he did not quit work with the employer to accompany her to California due to a change in the location of her employment, claimant failed to show that he quit work for a compelling family reason under OAR 471-030-0038(1)(e).

Claimant also failed to show that his desire to move to California to live with his girlfriend constituted good cause for him to quit work under OAR 471-030-0038(4). Claimant understandably wanted to live with his girlfriend with whom he had been in a long-distance relationship for more than two years. T hearing, however, he did not assert or show that exigent circumstances left him no reasonable alternative but to quit work and move when he did, and that no reasonable and prudent person would have continued to work for the employer for an additional period of time. Nor did claimant assert or show that he quit his job with the employer for any other reason that would have caused a reasonable and prudent person of normal sensitivity, exercising ordinary common sense, to leave work

Claimant voluntarily quit work without good cause and is disqualified from receiving unemployment insurance benefits until he requalifies for benefits by earning at least four times his weekly benefit amount from work in subject employment.
