

EMPLOYMENT APPEALS BOARD DECISION
2021-EAB-0416

Affirmed
Disqualification

PROCEDURAL HISTORY: On October 21, 2020, the Oregon Employment Department (the Department) served notice of an administrative decision concluding that claimant quit working for the employer without good cause and was disqualified from receiving unemployment insurance benefits effective September 1, 2019 (decision # 114157). Claimant filed a timely request for hearing. On May 6, 2021, ALJ Janzen conducted a hearing, and on May 7, 2021 issued Order No. 21-UI-166347, affirming decision # 114157. On May 26, 2021, claimant filed an application for review with the Employment Appeals Board (EAB).

WRITTEN ARGUMENT: Claimant and the employer each submitted written argument. EAB considered the parties' written argument when reaching this decision.

FINDINGS OF FACT: (1) Tonkin Wilsonville Nissan employed claimant as a general sales manager from January 13, 2014 until September 2, 2019.

(2) Claimant had worked in the automotive industry since he was in college. Claimant's work was stressful and often caused him to work long hours without weekends off. By the summer of 2019, claimant was "just basically burned out" working in the automotive industry. Audio Record at 7:26.

(3) Claimant is a person living with HIV. In the summer of 2019, he noticed his T-cell count was going down. Claimant thought stress from his job contributed to his decreased T-cell count. Claimant's lower T-cell count did not affect him physically. Claimant's doctor did not advise claimant to leave work due to the status of his T-cell count.

(4) On August 9, 2019, claimant notified the employer of his intent to quit work effective September 2, 2019. Claimant worked through his notice period and quit on that day.

(5) Claimant decided to quit because he "wanted to try something different" and wished "to get out of the car business." Audio Record at 7:15; 15:06.

A claimant who leaves work voluntarily is disqualified from the receipt of benefits unless they prove, by a preponderance of the evidence, that they had good cause for leaving work when they did. ORS 657.176(2)(c); Young v. Employment Department, 170 Or App 752, 13 P3d 1027 (2000). “Good cause . . . is such that a reasonable and prudent person of normal sensitivity, exercising ordinary common sense, would leave work.” OAR 471-030-0038(4) (September 22, 2020). “[T]he reason must be of such gravity that the individual has no reasonable alternative but to leave work.” OAR 471-030-0038(4). The standard is objective. McDowell v. Employment Department, 348 Or 605, 612, 236 P3d 722 (2010). Claimant had HIV, a permanent or long-term “physical or mental impairment” as defined at 29 CFR §1630.2(h). A claimant with an impairment who quits work must show that no reasonable and prudent person with the characteristics and qualities of an individual with such an impairment would have continued to work for their employer for an additional period of time.

Under OAR 471-030-0038(5)(b)(A), leaving suitable work to seek other work is not good cause for voluntarily quitting work. Factors to consider when determining whether work is “suitable” include “the degree of risk involved to the health, safety and morals of the individual, the physical fitness and prior training, experience and prior earnings of the individual, the length of unemployment and prospects for securing local work in the customary occupation of the individual, the distance of the available work from the residence of the individual.” ORS 657.190.

Claimant quit without good cause because claimant left suitable work to seek other work. Claimant quit working for the employer to seek other work in a profession outside of the automotive industry. Applying the factors set forth under ORS 657.190, claimant’s work as a General Sales Manager for the employer constituted suitable work. The record does not suggest that working for the employer posed a significant risk to claimant’s health or safety. Although claimant believed the stress of working for the employer contributed to his decreased T-cell count, claimant’s decreased T-cell count did not affect him physically and he was not advised by his doctor to leave work due to the status of his T-cell count. There is also no indication from the record that claimant lacked the physical fitness or training necessary to perform his work for the employer adequately – the record does not reflect that working as a General Sales Manager was physically demanding and claimant had extensive experience in that position. In addition, the record does not suggest that claimant’s work for the employer was beyond an acceptable distance from his residence. Accordingly, because claimant’s work for the employer was suitable work, under OAR 471-030-0038(5)(b)(A), claimant quit without good cause when he left that work to seek other work.

Claimant voluntarily quit work without good cause and is disqualified from receiving unemployment insurance benefits effective September 1, 2019.
