

EMPLOYMENT APPEALS BOARD DECISION
2021-EAB-0502

Affirmed
Disqualification

PROCEDURAL HISTORY: On April 15, 2021, the Oregon Employment Department (the Department) served notice of an administrative decision concluding that claimant quit working for the employer without good cause and was disqualified from receiving unemployment insurance benefits effective March 21, 2021 (decision # 135012). Claimant filed a timely request for hearing. On June 3, 2021, ALJ Snyder conducted a hearing, and on June 11, 2021 issued Order No. 21-UI-168602, affirming decision # 135012. On June 18, 2021, claimant filed an application for review with the Employment Appeals Board (EAB).

EAB considered claimant's written argument to the extent it was based on the record.

FINDINGS OF FACT: (1) Larry's RV employed claimant as an RV technician from March 22, 2021 to March 23, 2021.

(2) On March 22, 2021, claimant worked an eight-hour shift for the employer. Claimant had safety concerns about the workplace because the employer did not have a dedicated service shop, and the area where claimant worked had no electricity, so the employer ran extension cords and air hoses across the parking lot so that the employees could complete service work. During claimant's shift, the employer directed claimant and two coworkers to replace an awning fabric on an RV, despite 30 mile per hour wind gusts in claimant's work area. While claimant and the two coworkers struggled to hold the awning fabric down, the wind blew over a 12-foot stepladder. Claimant's coworker got on the roof of the 13-foot motor home, without access to a "tie off" or any other safety equipment, to assist with the completion of the awning job. Audio Record at 11:12. Claimant considered the lack of safety equipment, the lack of protection against environmental conditions like wind gusts, and the fact that there were "cords around everywhere" as being "ridiculous." Audio Record at 11:28; 15:30.

(3) On March 23, 2021, claimant went to his place of employment, entered the owner's office, and informed the owner that he "didn't feel comfortable" working for the employer. Audio Record at 12:48. Despite the fact that claimant believed the owner was "a great guy," claimant did not address his safety concerns with the owner, or request any safety accommodations with the owner or anyone else who worked for the employer. Audio Record at 13:50. Had claimant approached his manager about his safety-related concerns, the manager would have coordinated claimant's work so that claimant was not asked to perform any roof work.

CONCLUSIONS AND REASONS: Claimant voluntarily quit working for the employer without good cause.

A claimant who leaves work voluntarily is disqualified from the receipt of benefits unless they prove, by a preponderance of the evidence, that they had good cause for leaving work when they did. ORS 657.176(2)(c); Young v. Employment Department, 170 Or App 752, 13 P3d 1027 (2000). "Good cause . . . is such that a reasonable and prudent person of normal sensitivity, exercising ordinary common sense, would leave work." OAR 471-030-0038(4) (September 22, 2020). "[T]he reason must be of such gravity that the individual has no reasonable alternative but to leave work." OAR 471-030-0038(4). The standard is objective. McDowell v. Employment Department, 348 Or 605, 612, 236 P3d 722 (2010). A claimant who quits work must show that no reasonable and prudent person would have continued to work for their employer for an additional period of time.

Claimant has failed to meet his burden to show good cause for his decision to leave work. While the record demonstrates that claimant had legitimate safety-related concerns regarding his work environment, and while those concerns could have feasibly led to a grave situation if left unaddressed, claimant did not pursue the reasonable alternative of approaching the employer to address his concerns about the safety of the work environment before he quit. Rather than quitting after one shift, claimant could have discussed with the employer the safety-related dangers he felt were associated with the March 22, 2021 awning repair job such as the lack of safety tie offs for roof work, the multiple power cords and hoses on the floor, and the employee exposure to unsafe wind conditions, and requested that additional safety considerations and equipment be provided. Furthermore, the record demonstrates that had claimant approached his manager about his concerns, the manager likely would have coordinated a safety-related accommodation for claimant to ensure claimant did not perform RV roof work going forward. Given claimant's positive rapport with the employer, the record fails to show that approaching the employer about his safety concerns would have been futile. Because the preponderance of the evidence shows that claimant had a reasonable alternative to quitting work when he did, claimant has failed to meet his burden to demonstrate that he quit work with good cause, and he is disqualified from receiving benefits effective March 21, 2021.
