

EMPLOYMENT APPEALS BOARD DECISION
2021-EAB-0569

Affirmed
Disqualification

PROCEDURAL HISTORY: On April 30, 2021, the Oregon Employment Department (the Department) served notice of an administrative decision concluding that claimant voluntarily quit working for SAS Retail Merchandising, LLC without good cause and was disqualified from receiving unemployment insurance benefits effective February 14, 2021 (decision # 110158). Claimant filed a timely request for hearing. On June 23, 2021, ALJ Amesbury conducted a hearing, and on June 24, 2021 issued Order No. 21-UI-169357, affirming decision # 110158. On July 9, 2021, claimant filed an application for review with the Employment Appeals Board (EAB).

WRITTEN ARGUMENT: Claimant's argument contained information that was not part of the hearing record, and did not show that factors or circumstances beyond claimant's reasonable control prevented her from offering the information during the hearing. Under ORS 657.275(2) and OAR 471-041-0090 (May 13, 2019), EAB considered only information received into evidence at the hearing when reaching this decision. EAB considered claimant's argument to the extent it was based on the record.

FINDINGS OF FACT: (1) SAS Retail Merchandising, LLC employed claimant as a merchandiser from February 16, 2021 to February 20, 2021.

(2) On or about February 16, 2021, claimant answered the employer's job advertisement in her hometown of Grants Pass, Oregon seeking a merchandiser. A recruiter called claimant and told her that the position was "local," which claimant understood to mean located in Grants Pass. The recruiter also told claimant that she would be working on D.T.'s team, but that D.T.'s team did not currently have work available for her. Thus, claimant would spend her first few workdays working outside of Grants Pass with a different team to provide her work and experience, and to prepare her for a quick transition to D.T.'s team when work on D.T.'s team became available.

(3) From February 17 to February 19, 2021, claimant worked with the different team outside of Grants Pass. During this time, D.T., who now had work on her team available for claimant, sent claimant her schedule for the next week. Claimant reviewed the schedule, saw that she would be working with D.T.'s team in Portland, and asked D.T. why the work was in Portland. D.T. explained to claimant that her team was a travelling team that always travelled to a different city for work, and sometimes was required to stay overnight at the work location. Claimant would not have accepted the position if she knew it was a travelling position.

(4) On February 20, 2021, claimant emailed D.T. and quit her job. Claimant did not approach the employer about alternatives prior to quitting. The employer had non-travelling teams in the Grants Pass area with frequent openings and D.T. would have pursued a transfer for claimant to a non-travelling team had claimant approached her prior to quitting.

CONCLUSIONS AND REASONS: Claimant voluntarily quit working for the employer without good cause.

A claimant who leaves work voluntarily is disqualified from the receipt of benefits unless they prove, by a preponderance of the evidence, that they had good cause for leaving work when they did. ORS 657.176(2)(c); Young v. Employment Department, 170 Or App 752, 13 P3d 1027 (2000). “Good cause . . . is such that a reasonable and prudent person of normal sensitivity, exercising ordinary common sense, would leave work.” OAR 471-030-0038(4) (September 22, 2020). “[T]he reason must be of such gravity that the individual has no reasonable alternative but to leave work.” OAR 471-030-0038(4). The standard is objective. McDowell v. Employment Department, 348 Or 605, 612, 236 P3d 722 (2010). A claimant who quits work must show that no reasonable and prudent person would have continued to work for their employer for an additional period of time.

The preponderance of the evidence demonstrates that claimant believed at the time she accepted the position with the employer that the job would be located in Grants Pass where she lived. Claimant’s expectation was reasonable given the representations of the recruiter that her job would be “local” in nature. When the employer subsequently told claimant that the job was a travelling position, and that the travel might span hundreds of miles of distance and overnight stays (as was the case with Portland), the circumstances presented a grave situation for claimant.

However, the record also demonstrates that claimant had reasonable alternatives she could have pursued before she quit. The employer had several non-travelling teams in the Grants Pass area that had frequent openings for merchandisers and D.T. would have been willing to look into a transfer to one of those teams had claimant told her about her unwillingness to travel before she quit. Because these alternatives were reasonable, and because claimant failed to speak to the employer prior to her decision to quit about these or any other reasonable alternatives, claimant failed to meet her burden of demonstrating that she had no reasonable alternative other than to quit her employment when she did. As such, claimant failed to show that she had good cause to quit work, and she is disqualified from receiving unemployment insurance benefits.
