

EMPLOYMENT APPEALS BOARD DECISION
2021-EAB-0711

Modified
Disqualification Effective May 9, 2021 (Week 19-21)

PROCEDURAL HISTORY: On June 28, 2021, the Oregon Employment Department (the Department) served notice of an administrative decision concluding that claimant quit working for the employer with good cause and was not disqualified from receiving unemployment insurance benefits based on the work separation (decision # 71522). The employer filed a timely request for hearing. On August 26, 2021, ALJ Scott conducted a hearing at which claimant failed to appear, and on August 27, 2021 issued Order No. 21-UI-173586, reversing decision # 71522 by concluding that claimant quit work without good cause and was disqualified from receiving benefits based on the work separation effective May 2, 2021. On August 30, 2021, claimant filed an application for review with the Employment Appeals Board (EAB).

WRITTEN ARGUMENT: Claimant's argument contained information that was not part of the hearing record, and did not show that factors or circumstances beyond claimant's reasonable control prevented them from appearing at the hearing and offering the information at that time. Under ORS 657.275(2) and OAR 471-041-0090 (May 13, 2019), EAB considered only information received into evidence at the hearing when reaching this decision.

FINDINGS OF FACT: (1) Waterford Operations LLC employed claimant as a certified nursing assistant (CNA) from July 1, 2020 until May 15, 2021.

(2) At some point prior to May 2021, claimant was injured and filed a worker's compensation claim. The employer placed claimant on light duty work status because of her worker's compensation claim.

(3) In early May 2021, an independent physician evaluated claimant's injury and determined that the injury no longer required claimant to be confined to light duty work, and that claimant "would not be covered by [worker's compensation] any longer." Audio Record at 10:54.

(4) On May 14, 2021, the employer informed claimant that because worker's compensation no longer covered her, the employer did not intend to continue scheduling claimant for light duty work. The employer's staffing coordinator presented claimant with two options. One option was for claimant to appeal her worker's compensation claim and remain on light duty work status. The other option was for claimant to obtain a release to work full duty from her personal physician, which would enable the employer to schedule claimant to work full duty shifts.

(5) On May 15, 2021, claimant worked the first portion of her shift and then took her lunch break. During claimant's lunch break, she texted the staffing coordinator that she would not return from her break because of the employer's intention to discontinue scheduling claimant for light duty work status. The coordinator called claimant, and claimant initially agreed to return from her lunch break and tender a two weeks' notice of her intent to quit. After the call ended, however, claimant sent the coordinator a text stating "I just had a huge procedure. I'm not putting myself through this. And I'm not going back to the building." Audio Record at 14:15. Claimant did not return from her lunch break and did not work for the employer again.

CONCLUSIONS AND REASONS: Claimant voluntarily quit work without good cause.

A claimant who leaves work voluntarily is disqualified from the receipt of benefits unless they prove, by a preponderance of the evidence, that they had good cause for leaving work when they did. ORS 657.176(2)(c); Young v. Employment Department, 170 Or App 752, 13 P3d 1027 (2000). "Good cause . . . is such that a reasonable and prudent person of normal sensitivity, exercising ordinary common sense, would leave work." OAR 471-030-0038(4) (September 22, 2020). "[T]he reason must be of such gravity that the individual has no reasonable alternative but to leave work." OAR 471-030-0038(4). The standard is objective. McDowell v. Employment Department, 348 Or 605, 612, 236 P3d 722 (2010). A claimant who quits work must show that no reasonable and prudent person would have continued to work for their employer for an additional period of time.

Claimant quit work without good cause. Claimant quit work on May 15, 2021 because of the employer's intention to discontinue scheduling claimant for light duty work. The record does not show that the employer's intention to discontinue claimant's light duty work status presented claimant with a grave situation. The record shows, more likely than not, that claimant was capable of returning to full duty work given that an independent physician had determined that claimant's injury no longer required her to be confined to light duty. The record therefore reflects that claimant was physically capable of working full duty and that she would have been allowed to do so by the employer so long as she obtained a full release from her personal physician, which the record does not suggest would have been unavailable to claimant. Further, even if claimant did face a grave situation because of the employer's intention to discontinue claimant's light duty work status, she failed to pursue the reasonable alternative of appealing her worker's compensation claim. The record shows that had claimant appealed her worker's compensation claim, the employer would have allowed her to remain on light duty status. The record contains no evidence indicating that pursuing this alternative to quitting would have been futile.

For these reasons, claimant voluntarily left work without good cause. Claimant is disqualified from receiving unemployment insurance benefits effective May 9, 2021.
