

EMPLOYMENT APPEALS BOARD DECISION
2022-EAB-0599

Affirmed
Disqualification

PROCEDURAL HISTORY: On April 5, 2022, the Oregon Employment Department (the Department) served notice of an administrative decision concluding that claimant quit working for the employer without good cause and was disqualified from receiving unemployment insurance benefits effective March 13, 2022 (decision # 91406). Claimant filed a timely request for hearing. On May 20, 2022, ALJ Wardlow conducted a hearing, and on May 23, 2022 issued Order No. 22-UI-194417, affirming decision # 91406. On May 26, 2022, claimant filed an application for review with the Employment Appeals Board (EAB).

WRITTEN ARGUMENT: Claimant's May 26, 2022 argument contained information that was not part of the hearing record, and did not show that factors or circumstances beyond claimant's reasonable control prevented her from offering the information during the hearing. Under ORS 657.275(2) and OAR 471-041-0090 (May 13, 2019), EAB considered only information received into evidence at the hearing when reaching this decision. EAB considered claimant's May 26, 2022 argument to the extent it was based on the record.

In her May 26, 2022 argument, claimant suggested that the order under review included findings of fact that were "not accurate or correct." Claimant's May 26, 2022 Written Argument at 1. Among the findings of fact with which claimant took issue was the finding that "Claimant was always able to get help from the eligibility case managers[.]" Order No. 22-UI-194417 at 1; Claimant's May 26, 2022 Written Argument at 1. In fact, claimant testified at hearing that "there wasn't a time that I reached out to eligibility worker[s], uh, that they did not help me." Transcript at 16. Whether claimant took issue with the order under review's characterization of the people who helped claimant as "eligibility case managers" rather than "eligibility workers," or whether claimant was instead protesting the finding that she always got help from someone when she asked, is unclear. Regardless, to the extent that claimant believes that the order under review misstated or did not fully represent her testimony at hearing, claimant has not shown that any errors made in the order under review were material to the outcome in this matter.

“Good cause” for quitting is, under OAR 471-030-0038(4) (September 22, 2020), an objective standard. See McDowell v. Employment Department, 348 Or 605, 612, 236 P3d 722 (2010). In order to show good cause for voluntarily quitting, an individual must show that no reasonable and prudent person would have continued to work for their employer for an additional period of time. Claimant’s testimony, documentary evidence, and written argument show that she had a number of concerns that led her to subjectively believe that she could no longer work for the employer. However, claimant did not, as addressed in the order under review, objectively show that no reasonable and prudent person would have continued working for the employer for an additional period of time.

Claimant did not declare that she provided a copy of her July 12, 2022 argument to the opposing party or parties as required by OAR 471-041-0080(2)(a) (May 13, 2019). The argument also contained information that was not part of the hearing record, and did not show that factors or circumstances beyond claimant’s reasonable control prevented her from offering the information during the hearing as required by OAR 471-041-0090 (May 13, 2019). Additionally, claimant’s July 12, 2022 argument was not received by EAB within the time period allowed under OAR 471-041-0080(1). EAB therefore did not consider the July 12, 2022 argument when reaching this decision.

EAB reviewed the entire hearing record. On de novo review and pursuant to ORS 657.275(2), the order under review is adopted.

DECISION: Order No. 22-UI-194417 is affirmed.
