

EMPLOYMENT APPEALS BOARD DECISION
2023-EAB-0371

Reversed
No Disqualification

PROCEDURAL HISTORY: On December 21, 2022, the Oregon Employment Department (the Department) served notice of an administrative decision concluding that claimant voluntarily quit work without good cause and was therefore disqualified from receiving unemployment insurance benefits effective November 27, 2022 (decision # 72836). Claimant filed a timely request for hearing. On March 1, 2023, ALJ Clemons conducted a hearing, and on March 9, 2023 issued Order No. 23-UI-218579, affirming decision # 72836. On March 29, 2023, claimant filed an application for review with the Employment Appeals Board (EAB).

WRITTEN ARGUMENT: Claimant's argument contained information that was not part of the hearing record, and did not show that factors or circumstances beyond claimant's reasonable control prevented him from offering the information during the hearing. Under ORS 657.275(2) and OAR 471-041-0090 (May 13, 2019), EAB considered only information received into evidence at the hearing when reaching this decision. EAB considered claimant's argument to the extent it was based on the record.

FINDINGS OF FACT: (1) McGees Auto Service LLC employed claimant as an auto technician from February 2014 until December 1, 2022.

(2) At the start of claimant's shift on December 1, 2022, the employer's owner announced to all employees that the business had ceased operations. No work was available to claimant that day and claimant received no pay from the employer for that day. Claimant did not work for the employer again.

(3) When the owner announced that the business had closed, claimant and another employee were offered up to five days of work moving business property to the owner's home beginning after December 1, 2022. Claimant declined this offer of work.

CONCLUSIONS AND REASONS: Claimant was discharged, but not for misconduct.

Nature of the work separation. If an employee could have continued to work for the same employer for an additional period of time, the work separation is a voluntary leaving. OAR 471-030-0038(2)(a)

(September 22, 2020). If the employee is willing to continue to work for the same employer for an additional period of time but is not allowed to do so by the employer, the separation is a discharge. OAR 471-030-0038(2)(b). “Work” means “the continuing relationship between an employer and an employee.” OAR 471-030-0038(1)(a).

The order under review concluded that claimant voluntarily quit work without good cause because he could have continued working for the employer for an additional period of time, but was unwilling to do so. Order No. 23-UI-218579 at 2. The record does not support this conclusion.

The owner testified that no auto technician work was available to claimant after November 30, 2022, and that no work at all was available to claimant on December 1, 2022. Audio Record at 23:58 to 25:52. It can be inferred from the record that the owner’s offer to pay claimant to move items to the owner’s home for a short period of time thereafter involved duties and physical requirements entirely different from claimant’s customary work. Such work would have taken place after a gap in employment, albeit of only one day, December 1, 2022. Under these circumstances, the moving work would have constituted an employment relationship distinct from the job claimant had performed for the employer through November 30, 2022. For these reasons, the record shows that the employer did not allow claimant to continue working for the employer after November 30, 2022, and the offer of work as a mover to take place after December 1, 2022 constituted a separate job offer that occurred after the work separation. Accordingly, the work separation was a discharge that occurred December 1, 2022.

Discharge: ORS 657.176(2)(a) requires a disqualification from unemployment insurance benefits if the employer discharged claimant for misconduct connected with work. “As used in ORS 657.176(2)(a) . . . a willful or wantonly negligent violation of the standards of behavior which an employer has the right to expect of an employee is misconduct. An act or series of actions that amount to a willful or wantonly negligent disregard of an employer’s interest is misconduct.” OAR 471-030-0038(3)(a). “[W]antonly negligent’ means indifference to the consequences of an act or series of actions, or a failure to act or a series of failures to act, where the individual acting or failing to act is conscious of his or her conduct and knew or should have known that his or her conduct would probably result in a violation of the standards of behavior which an employer has the right to expect of an employee.” OAR 471-030-0038(1)(c). In a discharge case, the employer has the burden to establish misconduct by a preponderance of evidence. Babcock v. Employment Division, 25 Or App 661, 550 P2d 1233 (1976).

The employer discharged claimant because they ceased operations and had no additional auto technician work for claimant to perform. The record shows that the employer has not alleged that claimant engaged in any misconduct, and asserted only that claimant’s job as an auto technician ended due to a lack of work. Therefore, the employer has not shown that claimant was discharged for misconduct.

For these reasons, claimant was discharged, but not for misconduct, and is not disqualified from receiving unemployment insurance benefits based on the work separation.

DECISION: Order No. 23-UI-218579 is set aside, as outlined above.
