

EMPLOYMENT APPEALS BOARD DECISION
2023-EAB-0631

Affirmed
Overpayment, No Penalties

PROCEDURAL HISTORY: On December 3, 2021, the Oregon Employment Department (the Department) served notice of an administrative decision concluding that claimant received benefits to which she was not entitled, and assessing an overpayment of $900 in Lost Wages Assistance (LWA) benefits that claimant was required to repay to the Department (decision # 0559292). Claimant filed a timely request for hearing. On May 18, 2023, ALJ Lucas conducted a hearing, and on May 26, 2023 issued Order No. 23-UI-226257, modifying decision # 0559292 by concluding that claimant was liable for an overpayment of $300 in LWA benefits that she was required to repay to the Department. On June 1, 2023, claimant filed an application for review with the Employment Appeals Board (EAB).

WRITTEN ARGUMENT: EAB considered claimant's written argument when reaching this decision.

In her written argument, claimant raised a concern regarding an apparent contradiction between Findings of Fact # 5 and 6 in the order under review. Claimant's Written Argument at 1. Those findings of fact found, respectively, that claimant was not eligible for benefits for week 32-20 based on an administrative decision issued March 5, 2021 that had become final without a timely appeal; and that claimant was eligible for benefits for week 32-20 based on the reversal of a November 24, 2021 administrative decision which had previously determined her to be ineligible. Order No. 23-UI-226257 at 2.

Although claimant's confusion over this apparent contradiction is understandable, claimant should note that eligibility for benefits during any given week typically depends on the fulfillment of several different, and independent, criteria. Failure to meet any one of these can result in a finding that the individual is not eligible for benefits for that week, even if they have met all other applicable criteria. As a result, an individual may be found to be "not ineligible" on the basis that they have met one of the legal requirements for eligibility, while still being ineligible on another, entirely separate basis.

Here, the Department issued two different administrative decisions which both, in relevant part, determined that claimant was not eligible for benefits for week 32-20. One of these decisions was based on the Department's finding that claimant had not actively sought work during that week. The other was based on the Department's finding that claimant did not follow the Department's rules because she failed to provide information requested by the Department. The second decision was reversed after a hearing on the merits of that decision. As such, as a matter of law, claimant is no longer considered to have failed to provide information requested by the Department, and is not rendered ineligible for benefits for week 32-20 on the specific basis of failing to provide information.

However, claimant did not timely appeal the first decision, and was later found to not have had good cause for filing the late appeal on that decision. As a result, the conclusion in that first decision that she did not actively seek work during week 32-20 is still in effect. Thus, even though claimant is no longer considered ineligible for benefits for week 32-20 on the basis that she failed to provide requested information to the Department, she is still considered ineligible for benefits for that week because, as a matter of law, she did not actively seek work during that week. Therefore, the order under review correctly concluded that she was overpaid benefits for week 32-20.

EAB reviewed the entire hearing record. On de novo review and pursuant to ORS 657.275(2), the order under review is adopted.

DECISION: Order No. 23-UI-226257 is affirmed.
